Overview

Zak joined Gordon Arata after graduating from Loyola University New Orleans College of Law. As a summer associate with the firm, he researched commercial litigation and financial regulation questions involving oil and gas and banking. Today, he supports attorneys on disputes and transactions across the firm's practices.

During law school, Zak gained experience with other firms in the U.S. and abroad, including an internship with Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher LLP in Dubai. His work and training exposed him to corporate transactions, oil and gas projects, financial regulation and workers' compensation matters.

Zak earned his B.A. in political science from the University of Mississippi.
